 PBS HAWAI'I

CLASSICS

Communities Across Hawai'i

WEDNESDAYS IN JULY
AT 7:30 PM

PBS HAWAII CLASSICS

One of the most exciting facets of PBS Hawai'i Classics is hearing and seeing the reactions of people who watch them.

"I have been enjoying these classics so much lately," writes one viewer. "I can't get enough. The history, personal stories and simpler times. Lots to learn and appreciate."

Another person writes, "Awesome to have such a memory from over 40 years ago."

"Thank you for sharing these gems again," from yet another.

We are happy to share them and have more gems scheduled for Wednesdays in July.

The episodes focus on communities across three islands including Hilo, Puna and Kohala on the Big Island, Waimānalo and other parts of Windward O'ahu and Moloka'i.

Featured in the episodes are artists, craftsmen, Hawaiian cultural practitioners, historians, thrillseekers and athletes.

PBS Hawai'i Classics features programs produced in the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s like Pau Hana Years and Spectrum Hawai'i.

The programs are nostalgic for many viewers and a new experience for others.

"More people need to know and understand the importance of preserving and passing on the culture of our kūpuna," a viewer writes.

"So wish I could have seen and been a part of Hawai'i before I was born," says another.

And this viewer says, "I love these clips, such valuable pieces of history for us to learn and enjoy."

Storytelling is part of our mission here at PBS Hawai'i. This includes stories we have yet to tell along with those that should not be lost.

This viewer sums it up nicely: "Mahalo nui loa for preserving and sharing a priceless gem in Hawaiian culture and history."

 PBS HAWAII

WEDNESDAYS AT 7:30 PM

July 3 | Hilo and Puna In this episode of Spectrum Hawai'i from 1988, we learn details about the auction at the Suisan Fish Market, how the Hilo Macaroni Factory works, get a history lesson at the Lyman Museum and hear about life's struggles in lower Puna.

July 10 | Windward O'ahu

Kumu Hula Frank Hewitt talks about the importance of sharing and passing knowledge to the younger generation to preserve Hawaiian culture. Plus, a look inside the operation and history of Kualoa Ranch in this edition of Spectrum Hawai'i from 1990.

July 17 | Moloka'i: Living Off The Land

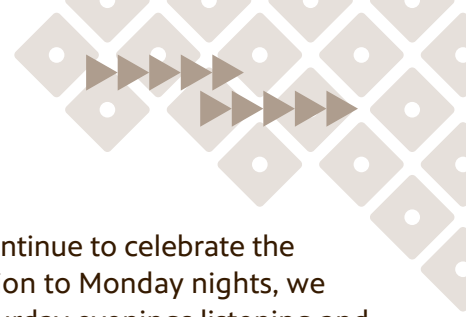

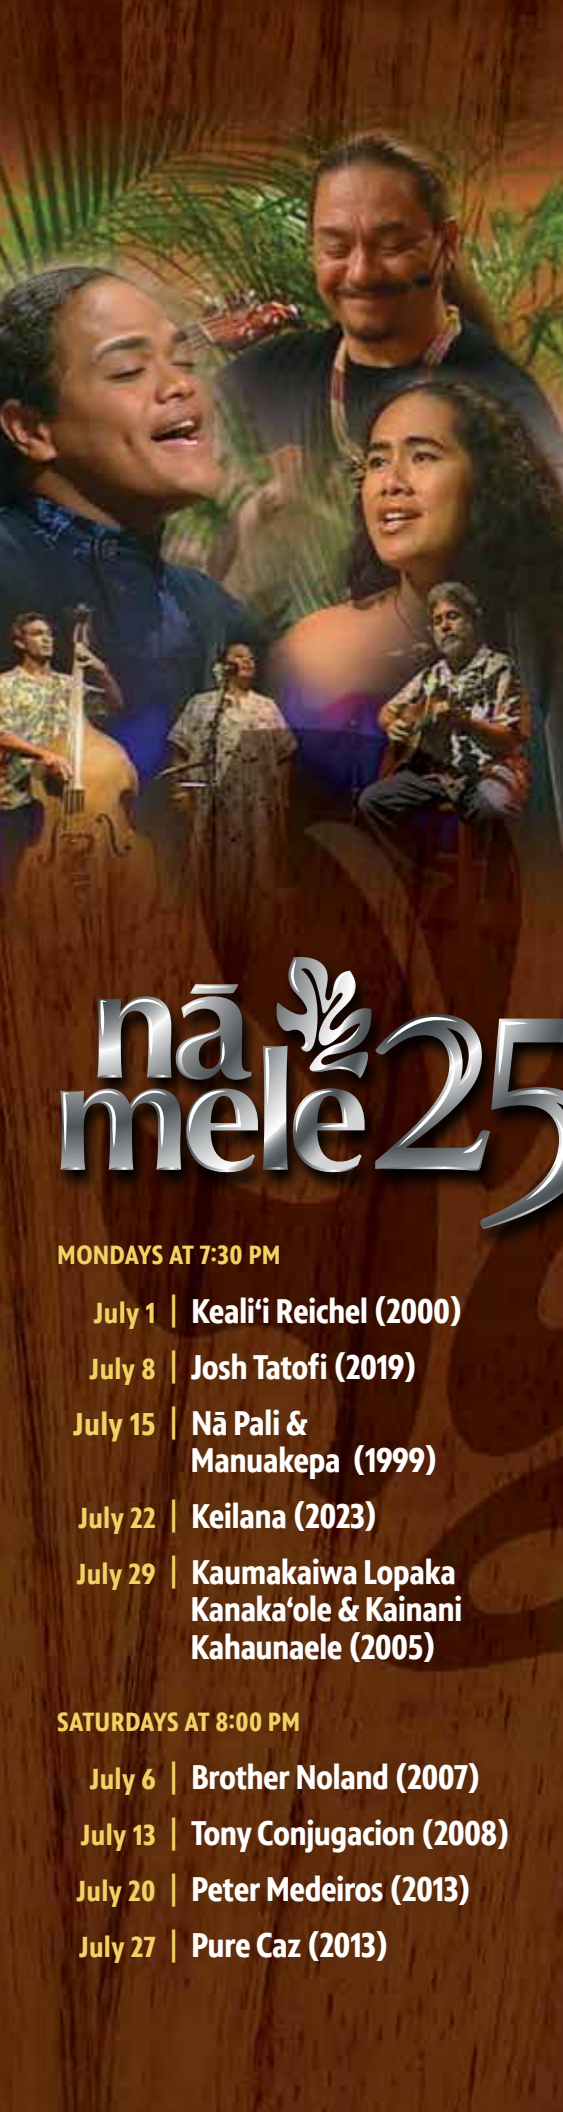

Native Hawaiians share their desires and efforts to preserve ancient cultural practices to put food on the table like the restoration and maintenance of fishponds, raising and harvesting kalo in a lo'i or kalo patch and the almost-forgotten skill of throw-net fishing in this Spectrum Hawai'i episode from 1993.

July 24 | Kohala

In this episode from 1986, Spectrum Hawai'i features the Kohala district of the Big Island with its majestic mountain and valley scapes along with pastoral views. It also showcases artisans from multiple disciplines including a flower lei specialist, a feather lei maker and a man who crafts guitars.

July 31 | Waimānalo

This episode of Spectrum Hawai'i takes us back to 1989 for snapshots of life in Waimānalo, Windward O'ahu including the sport of polo, the thrill of hang gliding, rodeo skills like bull riding and barrel racing and a trip to Sea Life Park.

As summer kicks into high gear, we continue to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Nā Mele. In addition to Monday nights, we invite you to spend a part of your Saturday evenings listening and learning about some of Hawai'i's beloved entertainers, with special, rarely-seen one-hour episodes.

We start with a studio kanikapila featuring Brother Noland and others. Born and raised in Kalihi-Pālama, Brother Noland has never forgotten his roots and uses music and life experiences to give back to the community and island keiki.

Although they're brothers, the musical styles of Brother Noland and Tony Conjugacion are quite different. The award-winning vocalist has performed on Broadway and is a beloved kumu hula. Conjugacion's episode of Nā Mele is filled with traditional and contemporary Hawaiian music, accompanied by generations of hula dancers.

Music also runs deep in the family of slack-key guitarist Peter Medeiros. He learned to play from his father, but it was the old-style. It wasn't until he heard the legendary Hawaiian music entertainers Gabby Pahinui and Peter Moon from The Sunday Manoa, that he realized the different levels of slack-key. Medeiros was fortunate enough to be mentored by Moon and Sonny Chillingworth, another influential slack-key guitar player in Hawai'i music history.

And we're capping off the month with The Brothers Cazimero in "Pure Caz." Robert and Roland Cazimero share everything from how their illustrious careers started to what they want their legacy to be. The personal insight is accompanied by the duo's expansive collection of music.

Finding Kukan

THURSDAY, JULY 11
AT 8:30 PM

Finding Kukan is an award winning documentary about the effort to find an Academy Award-winning film from the 1940s that told the story of China's resistance to brutal Japanese occupation.

Hawai'i filmmaker Robin Lung spent seven years investigating and documenting the story of uncredited filmmaker Li Ling-Ai, who teamed with photojournalist Rey Scott to share the plight of the Chinese with an American audience.

Finding Kukan also exposes longstanding underrepresentation of women and people of color in the film industry.

Infected Earth

THURSDAY, JULY 25
AT 8:30 PM

Hawai'i-based emergency room physician Darragh O'Carroll travels to Australia to investigate the dramatic effects of climate change on plant, animal and human life in the land down under.

"Climate change is not only affecting the health of the planet; it's also affecting human health.

[It's] doing more than just melting ice caps and bleaching coral, it's making us sick." says O'Carroll.

Dr. O'Carroll travels all across the continent talking to scientists, biologists and emergency responders to get their first-hand accounts of the drastic and sometimes startling way global warming is changing the natural world in Australia.

"Now more than ever. I'm hopeful we will act; because when it's our health we can't afford to wait."

NATIONAL PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

A CAPITOL FOURTH 2024 Thursday, July 4, 7:30 pm

Be front and center for America's biggest birthday party with a spectacular display of fireworks lighting up the iconic Washington, DC skyline. Celebrate our country's 248th birthday with musical performances by stars from pop, country, R&B, classical and Broadway along with the National Symphony Orchestra.

SHELTER ME Season 2 Thursdays, July 11-September 5, 9:30 pm

From a street vet who cares for pets belonging to unhoused community members in California to the Dog Chapel in Vermont honoring pets past and present, this series features inspirational stories about the bond between humans and animals from across the country.

ART + MEDICINE: DISABILITY, CULTURE AND CREATIVITY Monday, July 15, 9:00 pm

Artists and healthcare clinicians present alternative perspectives on disability through stories and performances, redefining what we perceive as "normal." Hear perspectives from a wide range of contributors who offer insight on the meaning of accessibility. Pictured: musician Gaelynn Lea.

GREAT PERFORMANCES AT THE MET Nabucco Friday, July 19, 8:00 pm

Ancient Babylon comes to life in this production of Verdi's early masterpiece. Baritone George Gagnidze (pictured) makes his Met debut as the imperious King Nabucco, alongside soprano Liudmyla Monastyrskya reprising her turn as his vengeful daughter, Abigaille. Daniele Callegari conducts and Angel Blue hosts.

GODS OF TENNIS Tuesdays, July 23-August 6, 9:00 pm

Framed through the world-famous Wimbledon tournament, revisit the legends from the golden age of tennis. Meet the heroes who changed the sport forever and drove significant change beyond the courts. Featured are Billie Jean King, Arthur Ashe, Bjorn Borg, John McEnroe, Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova and others.

HOTEL PORTOFINO Season 3 Sundays, July 28-September 1, 7:00 pm

Intrigue and romance return as dark secrets are exposed during another season of adventure at the sun-soaked resort. Natascha McElhone and Mark Umbers lead the cast of this period drama about a British family that runs a hotel on the Italian Riviera during the glamorous "Roaring 20s" – but also under the dark cloud of fascist Italy.

A Tale of Two Classics

Hawai'i in 1966. John Burns is governor, the Hawai'i Islanders baseball team opens its 6th season at Honolulu Stadium, the Rolling Stones perform at the H.I.C. Arena, Zippy's opens its first restaurant and PBS Hawai'i goes on the air. These last two institutions share much more than just their age, which is why Zippy's signed on as the digital sponsor of PBS Hawai'i Classics, says company Vice President of Marketing Kevin Yim.

"Both Zippy's and PBS Hawai'i nourish people, but in different ways," Yim adds. "We nourish the body, while PBS Hawai'i nourishes the mind. In both cases, that nourishment has its origins in our common past. Our food comes directly from Hawai'i's immigrant traditions when different ethnic groups shared foods from their cultures, all on a bed of rice – the precursor to the plate lunch and bento. The past informs our present and, hopefully, gives us a sense of identity that will help lead us into the future."

Likewise, PBS Hawai'i Classics (which taps into our archive of past shows like Pau Hana Years and Spectrum Hawai'i) draws from Hawai'i's past, whether it be from our indigenous culture or the experiences of the ethnic groups that arrived later. Our hope is that by giving our viewers the opportunity to reflect on where they come from, they can gain a better sense of who they are and where they are going.

But what compelled Zippy's to sign on specifically as a digital sponsor was that the online presentations of PBS Hawai'i Classics episodes were reaching a much younger audience than anticipated, in much higher numbers than expected, many garnering views in the tens of thousands on YouTube. (An episode about Miloli'i on the Big Island has surpassed 100,000 views.)

There have been instances of YouTube viewers commenting that they had spotted their grandparents in the online episodes. PBS Hawai'i Classics online has become a way for people to connect with their past in sometimes very personal ways. According to Yim, "It makes sense for us to sponsor this digital bridge to Hawai'i's past, because we, too, are using digital technologies, such as our Zippy's app, to connect a new generation to our traditions." In both cases, technology is helping a classic progress into the future. "Classics stand the test of time," says Yim. "They are timeless."

PBS Hawai'i's YouTube Channel has surpassed 22 million total lifetime views. If you are interested in becoming a PBS Hawai'i digital sponsor, please contact Robert Pennybacker at rpennybacker@pbshawaii.org.

Nā Mele: John Cruz
Monday, August 26 at 7:30 pm

Join us for an intimate, solo performance by singer-songwriter John Cruz as he shares his signature island style on Nā Mele. His emotionally packed, original songs may have you toe-tapping one moment and tearing up the next. He also sits down to tell us what it's like to grow up in a family rooted in music and how he responds when people ask him if he plays Hawaiian music.
